I.   Project Contract Overview

In this project, we decide to design a website selling clothes. We choose this kind of business for the fact that we already have contact with an acquaintance managing a pottery workshop.

At first, we show that our group is taking a subject that requires us to make contact with a real company to have a contract to design a website. We realize that this is a good opportunity for both of us to come to an agreement, for the fact that the company is in the need of promoting their products and a means for customer to get access with the company conveniently.

The manager is convinced about our plan. She agrees to make a deal with our group, that is to help her to design and run a website covering those purposes. In return, the company will sign the paper and pay for us like a realistic contract.

Then we have gone through a negotiation about terms and conditions of the contract. About the design and content specification, the company wants the website to be able to present and display multiple images, slides as well as short description about products in a good-looking way in each individual pages. About the layout of each detail product showcase. They also require us to create a database to store information about users, products, orders,…as well as create a function so that the staffs can manage the website as admins.

Our group agree that we will design the website follows those requirements. We will also train the staff to manage the website with basic functions such as add, edit, delete products, product types, orders,…and re-design the company logo.

After having done negotiation, we sign the contract, documents of terms, conditions and responsibilities and we begin designing the website.
